SULTAN'S BIG VICTORY

HIS FORCES SLAY OR CAPTURE
ALMOST THE ENTIRE REBEL
ARMY IN MOROCCO.

COURIERS BRING THE NEWS

One Messenger States That the Pretender, Bu Hamara, Is Among the Prisoners Taken, but Another Runner Denies This and Says It Is Uncertain Whether He Is Among the Slain—Is a Crushing Rebel Defeat.

Tangier, Feb. 2.—The sultan's troops have utterly routed the forces of the Moorish pretender and captured Bu Hamara himself.

A special courier who arrived during the day after making a record journey from Fez brought this news. He reports that at daybreak last Thursday the army of the sultan, commanded by the war minister, El Menebhi, attacked the pretender's position and inflicted a complete defeat on his following, at the same time capturing Bu Hamara.

Another runner who has arrived here from Fez confirms the news of the defeat of the rebels, but says that the report of the capture of the pretender is incorrect. He adds that it is uncertain whether Bu Hamara's body was among the great number of slain. The sultan's victory was absolute, almost the entire following of the pretender being either slain or captured. His camp, provisions and ammunition were taken and the artillery which was lost by the sultan's army in the battle of Dec. 23 was recaptured.

BRIBERY, NOT BULLETS.

Another Story of How the Sultan Won the Battle.

London, Feb. 2.—A dispatch from Tangier to the Morning Leader mentions a circumstantial report current in that city that Bu Hamara was brought to Fez in a cage and exposed to public derision.

The dispatch adds that it is impossible to ascertain the truth and attributes the sultan's victory more to his bribery of the tribes than to military tactics. The bribed rebels suddenly abandoned the pretender's standard.

BRUTALLY MURDERED.

Russian Miner Kicked and Stabbed to Death Near Wilkesbarre, Pa.

Wilkesbarre, Pa., Feb. 2.—Constant A. Sobrielsko, a Russian and a well known local miner, who had worked during the strike, was kicked and stabbed to death by twenty-one of his infuriated countrymen, who are all either miners or laborers working in and about the mines at Plymouth and Larksville, three miles from this city. The party had been at a dance during Saturday night, many of them not returning to their homes until noon Sunday. The deed was committed on the public highway near the Boston mine breaker at Larksville. One of the party, named Powell Ladofski, confessed to being implicated in the killing, and he and twenty others were arrested during the evening and committed to the Luzerne county prison.

ELUDES HIS PURSUERS.

New Jersey Man Commits Murder and Makes His Escape.

New York, Feb. 2.—Walter Ramsey of Harrison, N. J., was shot and instantly killed in the apartments of Mrs. George McDowell in Harrison, N. J., during the day. The shooting was done by Mrs. McDowell's husband. He left the house after the shooting, taking his wife with him, and has so far eluded the police. Mrs. McDowell later surrendered to the Newark police and was turned over to the Harrison authorities. According to her statement, she was in another room when her husband entered and shot Ramsey. McDowell and his wife had been living apart for some time.

AN UNENVIABLE RECORD.

Fifth Tragedy in a Week Takes Place at Clairton, Pa.

Pittsburg, Feb. 2.—The fifth tragedy within a week occurred during the day at the little settlement of Clairton, just above Pittsburg. Caught in company with John Jackson's wife, William Smith was shot and killed by her husband. When Jackson pulled his revolver, Smith did the same, and in the fusillade that followed Smith was shot through the heart, while Jackson received a bullet in the abdomen, which probably will prove fatal. Both men are negro laborers employed on railroad contract work.

ON HIS WEDDING DAY.

Butte (Mont.) Business Man Takes His Life With a Revolver.

Butte, Mont., Feb. 2.—Willard H. Winters, one of the most prominent men in Butte and former county auditor, Saturday night shot himself through the head with a revolver and died instantly.

It is said that Winters' fiancée broke their engagement, and this, it is believed, led to his suicide. On a table within a foot of the corpse were many wedding presents. The wedding ceremony was to have been performed Saturday night.

EX-SECRETARY LONG BETTER.

Reports Give Renewed Hope of His Ultimate Recovery.

Boston, Feb. 2.—The report during the day from the bedside of ex-Governor Long were of a character to give renewed hope of his ultimate recovery. The attending physician and the others in a position to know positively heretofore have been reticent, but the impression reflected from the bulletins of the past twenty-four hours was one of encouragement, and those in attendance made no attempt to conceal the fact that the day had been very satisfactory from a medical standpoint.

During the day the patient took a sufficient amount of nourishment without trouble and exhibited strength that was looked upon as gratifying. His mind was clearer than for a week past, and he was able to recognize those about him as well as to converse briefly. His temperature, which has varied slightly during the past week, was more nearly normal than at any time since the critical turn in his illness a week ago.

The most hopeful news of the day came at 10 o'clock p. m., when the following bulletin was given out:

"Mr. Long has had a very comfortable day. He has been more rational, takes his food well, and has as much strength as can be expected. His temperature has been more nearly normal than on any previous day."

OF INCENDIARY ORIGIN.

Utah State Reform School Suffers Slight Damage by Fire.

Ogden, Utah, Feb. 2.—An attempt was made during the day to burn the state reform school, which contains about 150 inmates. The fire was discovered in both boys' and girls' dormitories and for some time the flames threatened to envelope the entire building. The fire was brought under control, however, before serious damage was done.

It is charged that there was collusion between the boys and girls to destroy the institution. The officials have already begun an investigation.

CARS RUN INTO THE RIVER.

Six Persons Drowned in a Railway Accident in Mississippi.

Vicksburg, Miss., Feb. 2.—Two cars from a westbound train broke away at the aqueduct of the Queen and Crescent railway, and rushing down the grade, plunged into the river. One was a combination freight and immigration car and it is stated that it contained a family of six persons bound from a point in Eastern Alabama from Arkansas, all of whom were drowned. Neither the names of the immigrants nor the place they were from could be ascertained. Divers are searching for the bodies.

ROUGH WEATHER PREVAILS.

Danish Vessel Ashore on the Scotch Coast and Eight Men Lost.

London, Feb. 2.—The Danish steamer Xenia, Captain Kruse, Stettin, Dec. 3, for Boston, has gone ashore at Cruden, twenty-five miles from Aberdeen, and is completely submerged. Two of the crew were drowned, while the captain and the remainder of the crew were saved. Rough weather prevails around the British coasts. A lifeboat crossing Swansea bay to assist a vessel in distress was caught in a squall and capsized. Six of the lifeboat men perished.

Unknown Miscreant Throws Scalding Water on Three Newsboys.

Pittsburg, Feb. 2.—Three newsboys, Fred White, fourteen years old, Fred Heck, twelve, and Harry Hess, twelve, were so seriously scalded shortly after midnight that White and Heck will die. They were sleeping in an area way belonging to the First National bank when some unknown person threw two buckets of scalding water upon them. Heck is the only one who can talk, but he is unable to give the name of the person who threw the water.

COMPROMISE SCHEME

ANOTHER EFFORT BEING MADE TO SOLVE THE VENEZUELAN PROBLEM.

DETAILS NOT OBTAINABLE

Plan Originated With One of the European Allies' Representatives in Washington, and While It Has Not Formally Received Mr. Bowen's Endorsement, It Is Felt That He Will Not Offer Serious Objection.

Washington, Feb. 2.—Propositions involving a compromise of the allied powers' contention for preferential treatment in the settlement of their claims against Venezuela have been submitted to the governments of Great Britain, Germany and Italy by their representatives at Washington, and, while no answers have been received as yet, there is reason for the belief that the allies will see a way to accept the latest proposition. This compromise has been suggested by one of the representatives of the allies here, and, while it has not formally received the endorsement of Minister Bowen, it is felt that he will not enter serious objection to its adoption, provided the United States and the other claimant nations outside the alliance can be convinced that their own interests in Venezuela will not be substantially injured by yielding to a plan which seems to offer a solution of the present serious hitch in the Washington negotiations.

The details of the proposition now under consideration by the three allied nations are not obtainable, but in a general way it is understood that they be recognized as Venezuela's preferred claimants in the payment of the indemnity. The plan suggested provides that for a short period, perhaps six months or a year, Great Britain, Germany and Italy shall receive exclusively 30 per cent of the customs receipts of the ports of Puerto Cabello and La Guayra and that at the end of this period, the exact length of which is yet open to decision, all the claimant nations be placed on the same footing and at the expiration of that time the 30 per cent of the receipts of these two ports be divided among all the claimant nations in ratio based on the amount of each nation's claim.

The plan is regarded as a compromise which will enable the allies to withdraw their ships from Venezuelan waters without a serious loss of prestige.

Will the Other Powers Assent?

Whether the claimant nations outside the tripartite agreement will assent to this scheme is not yet known. The British ambassador called by appointment on Secretary Hay at 2 o'clock p. m. and it is believed that some such plan as this was under discussion, the British ambassador wishing to acquaint himself with the exact attitude of the United States regarding Lord Lansdowne's contention for preferential treatment for the allies. France has it in her power to continue the present deadlock in the Washington negotiations. For while the other unallied claimants have outstanding claims, all of the French claims are in a very forward state.

France contends that so far from assisting her in the collection of her Venezuelan claims, the blockade, if anything, has hampered her in that it has closed all the Venezuelan ports to commerce and has prevented for the time being the collection of the 13 per cent of the receipts pledged her by treaty.

It is the hope of the representatives of the allies at Washington that in case their governments accept in principle the kind of compromise suggested, they will not insist that the period for preferential payments be made so long as to prevent its acceptance by the other claimant nations.

Mr. Bowen has been assured that the representatives of the allies here will give him a final answer at the earliest possible moment. Meantime exchanges are still in progress between the allied governments and their respective embassies here in the effort to agree on a plan of settlement that will be acceptable at once to Venezuela and to the octagonal alliance of France, Belgium, Spain, Denmark, Holland, Norway, Sweden and the United States.

FRANCE BECOMING ACTIVE.

Will Seize Venezuelan Customs to Secure Payment of Claims.

Caracas, Feb. 2.—In reply to Minister Bowen's inquiry as to what Venezuela intends to do regarding the demand for preferential treatment by the allies, President Castro has telegraphed:

"The Venezuelan government desires equal treatment for all the creditor nations in Europe and America, keeping in mind its diplomatic convention and anterior stipulations." The French legation has notified the Venezuelan government that in virtue of the convention of 1857 France was allowed to collect directly part of the revenues of several customs houses in Venezuela as a guarantee for her diplomatic claims arising out of the previous revolutions. France, it is said, renounced forever by the convention of 1887 the exercise of this right on condition that the interest on this debt should always be regularly paid.

As this payment has not been made, France, without asking the authorization of Germany, England and Italy, intends to revive her right of collection. The French charge d'affaires, Quilverre, has twice called on President Castro during the past forty-eight hours. This activity on the part of France is evidently in connection with her intention to revive her rights, and is considered as an answer to the attitude adopted by the allied powers.

SUICIDES OF SOLDIERS.

Decrease in All Armies Except That of Russia

Paris, Feb. 2.—The Matin gives some interesting figures on the number of suicides in European armies. They seem to show that suicide is declining in all the armies except that of Russia, where thirteen out of every 100,000 commit suicide with unfailing regularity every year. The proportion of suicides in the other great military countries is higher, but shows a tendency to decrease. The present rate per 100,000 is: France, 18; Italy, 34; Germany, 36; Austria, 45.

The men in different arms of the service commit suicide in different proportions. The greatest number of suicides was in the foreign legion branch of the French army, where they amounted to ninety-nine per 100,000. On the other hand, there were only fourteen in each 100,000 in the grade republican. In the cavalry suicide was more frequent than in the infantry, and more so in the artillery than in the engineers.

WILL HOLD ITS PLACE.

Statehood Bill Continues as Unfinished Business in the Senate.

Washington, Feb. 2.—The omnibus statehood bill will continue for the present to hold its place as the unfinished business on the senate calendar, but it seems quite probable that the discussion of the statehood bill will come up in connection with the appropriation bills. Senator Quay has entirely changed his tactics during the past week, and after trying in vain to secure a quorum for night session on different occasions, has abandoned all efforts in that direction, leaving the senators who oppose the statehood bill to take the responsibility for delay. He now apparently is the least concerned of all the senators to secure late sessions. He makes no confidants, but it is evident that it is his purpose to make his fight in connection with the appropriation bills and to secure promises to vote for a statehood rider to one of the appropriation bills.

AS SOON AS POSSIBLE.

Entire Citizen Soldiery to Be Provided With Regular Service Rifles.

Washington, Feb. 2.—In accordance with the terms of the new militia law recently enacted by congress, the entire citizen soldiery is to be supplied with the regular service rifle. The state militia organizations aggregate approximately 115,000 men, nearly double the number of men in the regular army establishment. They will be furnished their arms as rapidly as they can be furnished by the armory at Springfield. In addition to this, the war department is establishing a plant at the Rock Island arsenal for the manufacture of the service rifle, though it will be some time before it is ready for work. The department has on hand a large reserve supply of rifles, sufficient almost to equip the militia, but will rely mainly upon the supply of the armories, as the officials must not draw upon the reserve too heavily.

SCARE FOR CUBANS.

Rumor That Germans Took Soundings Near Havana Harbor.

Havana, Feb. 2.—Some local papers have printed statements to the effect that boats from the German training ship Charlotte, which left here during the day for Germany, took soundings at the entrance of the harbor.

This rumor has been in circulation for some days. As it is unusual for boats to go outside the harbor, the captain of the port says he had the port police shadow the boats from the German ship in case anything of the kind occurred. The police say they saw no action on the part of the Germans. Nothing is known in official circles about the matter and at the German consulate the story is laughed at as being ridiculous. There was another report in circulation that a German officer had visited Cuban fortress.

TWO DAYS OF DEBATE.

House May Reach Anti-Trust Bill the Present Week.

Washington, Feb. 2.—The anti-trust bill, which was scheduled for early consideration in the house this week, will not come up until late in the week, if at all, and possibly may be postponed until next week. The friends of the currency bill are exceedingly anxious to get consideration for it, and a rule has been prepared. If it finally should be decided to allow the currency bill to come in after the postoffice appropriation bill is disposed of, the anti-trust bill will be shut out this week. The Democrats and Republicans have been conferring about the limit of the anti-trust bill debate, and a tentative agreement has been reached to allow two days general debate on the measure.

CONDITIONS IN MOROCCO

Missionary Cites the Causes Leading Up to Revolt.

SULTAN SURPRISED HIS VIZIERS

At the Death of His Grand Vizier He Fully Assumed Reins of Government, Developed Remarkable Likings For Everything Foreign and Conciliated Outsiders to Save His Empire—Purpose of Mission to London Explained.

A letter has just been received from Rev. James P. Welliver, formerly of Sioux City, Ia., giving an account of the revolution in Morocco, says the St. Louis Globe-Democrat. Mr. Welliver, his wife and two children are members of a missionary party now in Fez. His letter, written at Fez and dated Dec. 3, 1902, follows:

In view of the many reports which have been in circulation recently regarding political conditions in Morocco, a few lines concerning matters as they really are may not be unappreciated. Up to the time of writing nothing very serious has occurred, and the missionaries are all safe, sound and well.

The sultan of Morocco, Moolai Abd Al Aziz, began his reign eight years ago at the age of sixteen, just previous to the commencement of our mission work in this land. His grand vizier, familiarly known by the name of Abu Hamid, at once assumed full control of the young sultan's dominions and affairs. He was an unusually stern and unrelenting character, with little love for anything foreign. Under his administration foreign powers received, with but one or two exceptions, no favors of any importance, and treaty rights were generally, if at all, obtained only after a show of force.

Upon the death of Abu Hamid two and a half years ago the country knew him so well and knew the sultan so little that conservative people feared the tribes might rise up and rebel when his strong hand relaxed its hold. I was myself detained a little while by this fear in leaving Mequinez for Fez and Larache at the time of the last visit of our general director to Morocco. But the sultan proved to be no figure-head and assumed the reins of government at this juncture just as completely as he had turned them over to the vizier at his accession.

Two important facts now affect the whole story—one, that the sultan had developed the most remarkable liking for everything foreign, and the other that during the winter preceding the death of the grand vizier, France, whose possessions in Algeria lie on the eastern border of Morocco, had by force of arms taken possession of a district on the Morocco frontier known as Tuat, and it seemed as if further invasion of Morocco territory was imminent. The Moorish government found it necessary to send strong warnings to the tribes of the neighboring district of Taflett to prevent the execution of plans for an attack on the French, as "holy war" had been proclaimed in the public markets. Had such a thing taken place there would probably have been a pretext for further incursions on the territory of the sultan for the ostensible purpose of restoring order, and possibly a sufficient pretext for war would have been found. At the same time that efforts were made to check the movements of the tribesmen of Taflett a protest to France and an appeal to the principal European powers were made. The case, however, seemed complicated, and none of the powers seemed inclined to interfere with the French in their free hand on the frontier.

Shortly after this time the public mind was considerably exercised at the arrest by the sultan of the vizier, Al Haj Mokhtar, who had succeeded Abu Hamid. What this meant was not understood, as such occurrences were said to be rare in recent years. But it did not remain entirely a mystery, for in an exceedingly short time the vizier who was appointed to succeed him was sent on a special mission to England, ostensibly to congratulate the king on his succession, but probably, in fact, as later developments seemed to show, to make a stronger appeal than ever before to Britain for protection against the encroachments of the French. It is said that the embassy sent at this time was dealt with in a very straightforward manner by King Edward and his high officials, with the result that the vizier carried back to his master the intelligence that Britain was ready to help him hold his empire together providing the old shell of exclusiveness should be broken and reforms in government made which would insure an open door to all European nations and which would make it no longer to the people themselves "a terror to be rich and a danger to be poor." In short, the young sultan seemed to be in a state of mind to be convinced that Morocco must either go forward with the nations or be speedily "eaten up" by them. And it soon became evident that he preferred the former, for he had surrounded himself with a corps of foreign assistants such as no previous sultan had ever had—drillmasters, machinists, scientific men, surveyors, physicians, etc.—and it looked as if the day of reform in Morocco had dawned. Foremost among the improvements in the administration was the institution of systematic property taxation, designed to relieve the people from the burden of being "squeezed," or made to pay taxes at the will of the magistrate. Without doubt, though no official announcement has been made, the fact, the sultan has had in mind definite plans for the improvement of traffic facilities, and a small model railroad is in the process of construction in Fez. The free transportation of grain by sea has been allowed, relieving greatly the high prices in the northern part of the empire.

But while these innovations were welcomed by a large class, their meaning was not understood by the masses, and jealousy on the part of a certain class, of course, put them in further disfavor. Instead of understanding that the sultan had taken the only course left for the preservation of the crumbling empire they treated with disdain the idea that foreigners were to be feared or to be listened to, and all sorts of rumors and stories were circulated about the government. It was no pleasant medicine for many proud Mohammedans to swallow when, on the sultan's arrival at Fez last spring, a score or more of the best houses and gardens had to be vacated for the foreigners in the employ of the government. Fanaticism and ignorance of the real situation were the reasons for this strong feeling, but the crisis, if such it be, came unexpectedly. The sultan had planned to have a wagon road constructed from Fez to Mequinez and sent out engineers to locate it. In so doing signal poles were used after the fashion of surveyors and these were taken to be the flags of the nations and were at once torn down by indignant Berbers, who supposed that the foreigners had really taken the country.

It was shortly found that the feeling among the Berbers was of no transient character, and soon their dissatisfaction found vent in an uprising of the tribes of Zimmor and Girwan, west of Mequinez. The public markets within their reach were looted, roads became impassable and it was strongly rumored that they had expected, except for the timely arrival of reinforcements for the small body of troops at Mequinez, to make an effort to enter that city by force, release the sultan's brother, Moolai Mohammed, who is a prisoner there, and to proclaim him sultan. These plans, if they were really laid, were happily foiled.

The movement of the sovereign and his ministers is watched with greatest interest. Fortunately for the general situation, the viziers, or executive cabinet, seem to be in full sympathy with the reform movement, so far as is known.

BLIND BABY MADE TO SEE.

Remarkable Operation by an Oculist on a Binghamton Girl.

By a remarkable operation by Dr. Fennels M. Michael of Binghamton, N. Y., little Helen Kingsley, eight months old, who was born blind, has been made to see, says the New York Evening Journal. Before the operation the eyes appeared natural excepting that the black reflex, ordinarily seen, was white and glistening in the pupil of the eye.

Dr. Michael gave the child chloroform, and while the lids were drawn back by the assistant he inserted a narrow Graefe cataract knife through the outer portion of the cornea, then through the pupil and then through the white membrane, making a vertical incision through the eyeball.

At that point in the operation Dr. Michael found that the eyes had no lenses, but that in their place was a hard, dense, white membrane. Belladonna was dropped into the eyes to enlarge the openings in the membrane, and the eyes were bandaged and left for two days.

When the bandages were removed, a hand was quickly passed in front of the baby's eyes. Instantly she moved her head. The gesture was repeated, and again the hand moved. Bright colors were passed before her eyes, with the same effect. Since the operation many evidences of sight have been shown, and Dr. Michael says that with the aid of glasses she will see as well as any person.

"I have seen congenital cataracts where the lens was cataractous," said Dr. Michael, "and other cases where only a part of the lens was affected. In this case the lenses had evidently undergone a degeneration and left nothing but the membrane which inclosed them. There is a condition, called colodema, where a portion of the lens is gone. That is the condition most like this that I have observed. I have heard that such cases have been operated upon successfully, but I am unable to find record of them."

FORT SAN CARLOS.

Merchant Calls Venezuelan Stronghold a Loathsome Hole.

Merchants in New York who trade in Venezuela, while unwilling to express their views openly, are of the opinion that Germany's act in attacking Fort San Carlos was entirely uncalled for and injudicious, says the New York Tribune. One of them, who is acquainted with the fort and the country in the neighborhood, said recently that for one reason he was glad of the attack. The fort, he said, had been used by Castro as a place of imprisonment for political prisoners because of its loathsomeness. He described it as a hole so rotten that more than one who had been incarcerated in it had afterward died of yellow fever.

There had been as many as 2,000 persons imprisoned there at one time. It was here that General Hernandez (El Mocho) was kept for seventeen months with iron balls weighing forty pounds attached to his limbs; here also was imprisoned General Peredes, who fought against Castro's forces at Porto Cabello. He said he would be glad to see this loathsome hole destroyed.

Because a Man Was Laid Off.

Deadwood, S. D., Feb. 2.—Three hundred employees of the Golden Reward Smelter have gone on strike because of one man being laid off. About 700 other men will be thrown out of employment as a result, the company having decided to close down two of its large mines.

A BULLET DID THE BUSINESS

Young Man Living at Long Lake Shot Himself Saturday Night in the Forehead

HE HAD A KNOWN MELANCHOLY He Departed from this Sphere Without Leaving a Word as Parting Message.

Tired of life a young man by the name of Nels Fladequval, living near Long lake, sometime during Saturday night committed suicide and departed from his earthly abode without leaving even a word to indicate what had brought him to the gloomy state of mind that he must have been in.

The news of the suicide did not reach Brainerd until Sunday afternoon late when Coroner Chas. Osterlund was sent for. The coroner hastened to the scene and last night brought the remains to the city. He decided that it was not necessary to hold an inquest as it was a clear case of suicide.

The details surrounding the death of the young man are somewhat in keeping with other cases of this nature. It was evidently a case of melancholia although there is no reason ascribed by those who were closest to him for the rash act.

The deceased lived with Andrew Fladequval, a brother, at the upper end of Long lake, about twelve miles from Brainerd. The young man was always known to be sober and industrious and not the least suspicion was ever entertained that he was unhappy in his earthly surroundings. He left his brother's home on Saturday afternoon about 3 o'clock and told his sister-in-law that he was going over to visit at the home of C. Lee, just a short distance away. When he left the house he did not say a word about how long he would be away. He did not return Saturday night but no anxiety was felt in the Fladequval home as it was not unusual for him to leave the house and remain at some of the neighbors over night.

When he did not return Sunday morning, however, some little anxiety was felt and his brother went to the home of Mr. Lee, where the young man said he was going to visit, and when it was found that the Lee family had not seen him on Saturday or Sunday the anxiety grew into fear and a party was formed to go out and hunt for the young fellow.

The young man was tracked from the house out on the lake. He had walked around and around, following the shore most of the time as though trying to find some secluded spot. Finally in a thicket where the brush was particularly heavy they found the body lying cold in death.

The young man had shot himself in the forehead just above the left eye with a thirty-two calibre revolver. The bullet penetrated the skull slightly and then passed on beneath the skin to the top of the head where it came out. He fell backward and it is presumed that death was instantaneous. The body was frozen quite stiff so it is thought that the shooting was done early Saturday evening.

The young man was 28 years of age and single. His father and mother are both dead but he has many relatives living in this county, besides the brother with whom he made his home.

Coroner Osterlund will turn the body over to the relatives and the funeral will take place in this city. The death of the young man, occurring as it did under such unnatural circumstances has cast a gloom over the residents about Long Lake, where young Fladequval was well known.

Valuable Horse Died. Last night Dr. Reimstad tied one of his valuable bay driving horses to a post on Front street and when he came out after attending to some of his professional business he found his horse lying dead.

It seems that the horse started to back up and pull at the halter and in this fashion broke his neck. Si Hall was called and now Alderman C. D. Johnson will have a query in at the next council meeting if this was the same horse that was hauled to the dumping ground last month.

REMAINS ARRIVE IN BRAINERD.

The Funeral of the Late Edward Hawkins will be Held in This City Tomorrow Morning at 9 O'clock.

This afternoon the remains of Edward Hawkins, a former well known Brainerdite who died at Seattle a short time ago, arrived in the city and were conveyed to the home of his mother, Mrs. Hannah Hawkins. Deceased was a brother of J. F. and M. J. Hawkins of this city. M. J. Hawkins went as far as Staples to meet the sad party that accompanied the remains to Brainerd. They were accompanied from Seattle by the bereaved wife and her mother, Mrs. Scott. At Mandan Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Hawkins joined the party. Patrick H. Hawkins also arrived from Dickenson to attend the funeral. Patrick McDonald, of St. Paul, and Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Emerson, of Duluth, are also here.

It was ascertained this afternoon for the first time in Brainerd that Mr. Hawkins came to his death by a stroke of apoplexy. The funeral will be held tomorrow morning at 9 o'clock at St. Francis church, Rev. D. W. Lynch officiating.

IT WAS ALL HOT AIR.

A Man by the Name of George Schroeder Fills Clarissa People Full of Guff About Brainerd.

The Todd County Independent of this week has a long tirade on the front page, top of column next to pure reading matter, which recites in graphic detail how one George Schroeder, who was picked up there with the smallpox, was turned out of the pest house in this city after all his money was spent. The records at the hospitals and pest house in this city do not show that any such man was ever here, so it must be concluded that the Independent jumped at conclusions when they filled that column of their paper with stuff, red hot from the brain of a northern lumberjack. Dr. Thabes also received a letter from the board of health of Clarissa and is slightly warm under the collar about the article in the Todd County Independent.

STORY OF JOHN H. REAGAN

Favorite Occupation of Confederate Cabinet's Only Surviving Member.

The newspapers announce that John H. Reagan, postmaster general of the late Confederate States of America and only surviving member of its cabinet, sponsor for and would be author of the interstate commerce law and an almost incessant officeholder for sixty-three years, is about to retire to private life.

In the senate Reagan's favorite occupation was sitting sideways in a chair and playing cat's cradle with a piece of string, writes the special Washington correspondent of the New York Post. He would busy his hands thus for hours together while listening to a debate, but proved his attentiveness by frequent queries and other interpolations. The seat he occupied in this way was almost never his own. Just why he should prefer that of some one else it would have been hard to say. It was probably due more to his generally restless habit than to anything else. But he would pick out a particular one that seemed to be habitually empty and take up his position in it day after day regardless of whether it was better or worse situated than the one belonging to him by right.

This led to a curious "hoodoo" superstition. There was a succession of deaths among the senators on the Democratic side of the chamber during one rather short period, and somebody noted the fact that while these men were ill Reagan had taken a fancy to their chairs and sat in them a good deal. One day Zebulon Vance was stricken down by some temporary ailment and ordered to bed by his doctor. But nothing would induce him to go till he had written a note to Senator Pasco, the Democratic "whip," asking to have his pairs promptly attended to and ending with this prayer, "For mercy's sake, don't let old Reagan get my chair!"

CROW WING OUTFIT GET MARBLE HEART

At the Hand of the State Board of Pardons Recently Convened at St. Paul.

HAM HONG APPLICATION DENIED

Harry Rease's Application for a Pardon is Only One Granted by the Board.

The state board of pardons finished its work on Saturday afternoon and most of the Crow Wing county men who are doing stunts in the state penitentiary were turned down cold in their efforts to get pardons. Harry Rease was the only one who was successful.

Justin Stoddard, the man who assaulted a lady at Pequot about two years ago, and who was sentenced two years ago by Judge McClenahan to five years, applied for pardon but the members of the board told him and his attorney that they could not hear him, and his application was denied.

Ham Hong, the Crow Wing county Chinaman who is serving a twenty-five year term for the murder of his partner in this city must stay in his prison home, where he has been since 1893. The Chinese government is said to have taken great interest in his case and they are trying to procure his pardon on statutory grounds.

Harry Rease, sentenced from Crow Wing in 1899, to ten years for robbery in the second degree, was the only one to receive clemency at the hands of the board. He was granted a pardon. He was charged with enticing a young man into the woods south of the city and there holding him up for a paltry $6. There was always considerable doubt about Rease's guilt. There was another man mixed up in the case and the supposition is that he was really the instigator of the crime. Judge Alderman, who was county attorney at the time of the trial, recommended that Rease be pardoned.

MUSIC AND DRAMA.

From the Norfolk, Va. Dispatch Sept. 16. "Clyde Fitch's delightful comedy, "Captain Jinks of the Horse Marine" was given to a large and appreciative audience at the Academy of Music last night. The play is a refreshing bit of humor and pathos from the past, the action taking place in the period of the bustle and the ebullient about thirty years ago. The fantastic costumes compared to those worn nowadays, the old time-worn expressions, familiar to many in this day and generation, as popular in years now past the old-fashioned furniture used in the Breevort house scene, all contrived to take the spectator back to days long gone which were, perhaps the happiest of his or her existence.

"Not a detail was lacking to make the performance perfect. It was beautifully costumed and staged. Of the staging no fault can be found it was perfect. The company presenting the play is a most capable one in every respect. Miss Elizabeth Kennedy as Mme. Trentoni, gave a delightful interpretation of a role that calls for consummate artistic skill and grace, and it must in all fairness be said of the lady that she was fully appreciative of every opportunity that the part offered for a display of her talent, which she undoubtedly possesses to a large degree.

"Mr. Theodore Babcock, in the title role was excellent and the Professor Bellardi of that veteran actor, Mr. Edward J. Mack, was an artistic bit of work. Miss Charlotte Lambert as Mrs. Greensborough, was very clever, and the other members of the company were excellent. Altogether "Captain Jinks" was one of the most enjoyable entertainments presented to the Academy patrons for a long time."

"Captain Jinks" comes to the Brainerd theatre next Wednesday, Feb. 4, and should attract a large audience of our theatre-goers who relish the best in theatricals. The curtain will rise promptly at 8:15 for this and all other evening performances hereafter.

Seats will be placed on sale tomorrow at Dunns.

"HEART OF MARYLAND"

One of the most successful and interesting of the plays of David Belasco, "The Heart of Maryland," is to be the attraction at the Brainerd theatre Thursday Feb. 5th. As a war play "The Heart of Maryland" seems by the continuance of its popularity to be a proof of the truth of the "survival of the fittest". The production is notable for the intense and cumulative heart interest aroused in the progress of the story by the self-sacrificing devotion and heroic struggle of a love-inspired woman to protect the honor and save the life of the man she loves. From the first act in which Maryland Calvert denounces Col. Alan Kendrick as a spy, not knowing that the captured soldier is the man she loves, to the third act in which she kills the brutal and drunken Col. Thorpe and then rushes up the narrow stairway to the belfry and leaping from the platform claps the bell clapper and swings to and fro prevents the ringing out of the alarm that would effect Kendrick's capture and execution, the interest is intense.

Miss Alma Kruger will appear as Maryland Calvert. She was the successor of Mrs. Leslie Carter, for whom the play was written, and has achieved a brilliant success by her artistic and effective performance. Those in the supporting company are Tefft Johnson, Herbert Bostwick, Francis Justice, B. J. Murphy, T. Lowell, Robert McIntyre, Rowland Hill, Janet Golding, Anna Wayne and Florence Foster.

These Facts Must Convince Every Brainerd Reader.

STRIKE RIOTS IN WATERBURY, CONN., RESULT IN CALLING
OUT STATE TROOPS.

MOB HOOTS THE SOLDIERS

Governor Chamberlain Sends Fourteen
Companies to Preserve Order—Considerable Violence Taking Place.
Several Nonunion Street Car Men
Having Been Roughly Handled.
Property Damage Not Serious.

Waterbury, Conn., Feb. 2.—Eight companies of the First regiment, Connecticut national guard, and six companies of the Second regiment, with two Gatling guns, were called to Waterbury Sunday night at the command of Governor Chamberlain because of "the imperative need" occasioned by the trolley strike situation.
The riot about the streets Saturday night, coupled with threats of further disturbances, led to the call for troops.
There was no repetition Sunday of the violence of Saturday night, but crowds congregated about the streets, and had to be dispersed by the police, while there were rumors of an attack to be made on the car barn, where the nonunion motormen and conductors
brought here by the Connecticut Railway and Lighting company are quartered. During the day all the lines were operated as usual with the non-union trolley men, but though there was some hooting and jeering from the crowds, the cars were not molested.
No cars were run after dark.

Companies G and A of this city, a part of the Second regiment of the Connecticut national guard, were called to their armory shortly before 6 o'clock p. m. and remained there under orders.

Fourteen companies of the First and Second regiments, C. N. G., reached this city during the evening,
and, together with the two local companies, A and G, are under command of Brigadier General Russell Frost of South Norwalk.

All the visiting companies, which average fifty men each, and the local companies, total 800, arrived in the city between 9:40 and 10:15 on trains from New Haven and Hartford and marched to the armory under police escort, amid the

Hooting and Hissing
of the crowds that quickly gathered.
Five companies from Hartford and one each from New Britain and Bristol,
arrived under command of Colonel Edward Schulze. They brought with them two machine gun batteries.

A company from Manchester and one from Rockville, also brought Gatling guns. When the Second regiment contingent, consisting of five companies of New Haven, arrived, the streets were crowded with people and there was a noisy demonstration,
though there was no sign of active violence. The cries of "scab" were frequent along the route to the armory.
Late at night one company was ordered to the car barns and there was great excitement among those who witnessed the departure, but no outbreak.

Violence continued during the day,
though no serious damage was done.
One of the injured nonunion motormen,
who is in a serious condition,
was ordered to be removed to the hospital. Three nonunion men were on their way to the hospital for a stretcher when a mob of several hundred men and boys assailed them with rocks. The men ran and found refuge in the hospital. The mob surrounded the building and became so threatening that the superintendent telephoned to the police for protection.
Three officers were sent up and they succeeded in dispersing the mob, but when asked to escort the men back to the car barns, it is said they refused. In the evening a squad of officers escorted them to the car barns.
About twenty nonunion men have been injured in the riots.

vertiser learns that Lord Milner has asked to be relieved of his post of governor of the Transvaal and Orange River Colonies and high commissioner of South Africa, but at the desire expressed by the government he has consented to remain in South Africa
until the end of July, when he will be offered a high position in connection with the government of India.
Numerous rumors had been current
in South Africa that Lord Milner

CAN'T ESCAPE THE SCAFFOLD.

Minnesota Pardon Board Refuses
Mercy to Two Murderers.

St. Paul, Feb. 2.—The state board of pardons during the day heard arguments for and against the commuta-
tion of the death penalty in the cases of Ole G. Olson of Aitkin county and Charles E. L. Henderson of Duluth, and at their conclusion decided that no reason existed in either case why
the extreme penalty should not be carried out.

Olson's crime was the murder of his daughter, under particularly revolting circumstances. She was to be married the next day to a neighbor, in spite of her father's opposition. The father, the son and the daughter were sitting in a room together when the father took occasion to send the boy to the barn. Approaching the house on his return, the boy heard screams and saw his sister running towards him with a large butcher knife sticking in her breast.

The crime for which Henderson is to suffer the death penalty was also most brutal. The woman he murdered was his common law wife and the motive for his crime was jealousy.
He waited in hiding until the girl
came into the house and then stabbed
her to death, pursuing her from room
to room until he had inflicted fifteen wounds.

HAWAII'S PUBLIC LANDS

Over One Million Acres to Be Thrown Open For Settlers.

CHANCES FOR SMALL FARMERS.

All Garden Vegetables Do Well, and
Two to Four Crops a Year Is the Rule—Territory's Laws Are Even More Liberal Regarding Unoccupied Land Than Those of United States.

Hawaii is about to throw open its public lands to settlers from the States, says a dispatch from Honolulu to the New York Herald. There are some 1,200,000 acres of government land in the territory, though only half of it is unoccupied and not all of the remainder is available for agricultural purposes. These public lands belong to the local and not to the United States government.

Several attempts have been made to place these great areas under the supervision of the Washington authorities, but the opposition on the part of the islands has prevented this, it being held that the national land laws could not be put into force without causing great injury to present residents. The land laws of the territory are even more liberal than those of the United States, however, and under the order
just promulgated lands can be taken up by any citizen of the country,
whether having a residence in Hawaii
or not.

Everything will grow in Hawaii.
Though sugar is the staple of the islands, every product of every state in the Union, north and south, is under cultivation there, and crops are raised which cannot be duplicated in any other country. Excepting in the sugar industry there is plenty of room for American farmers with modern methods, and even in the cultivation of sugar there is much money to be made in growing the cane on a profit sharing basis.

The bulk of the farms of the islands
are at present in the hands of Portuguese, Chinese and Japanese. Their methods of farming are of the crudest.
On the island of Maui three and four crops of potatoes and corn are raised every year, yet the hoe and the shovel are the only farming implements in use. Jared G. Smith, United States agent in charge of the agricultural station, has just ordered a corn planter,
a cultivator and a corn cutter. Experiments are now to be made with fertilizers and rotation of crops in an endeavor to teach the natives improved methods of farming.

Hawaii is the most fertile of the islands and, being the largest, has the greatest quantity of farm lands which are ready to be opened to settlers from the States if they desire to come.

Cabbage grows the year round and to an enormous size, cauliflower can be marketed three times a year, parsnips, parsley, artichokes and celery grow to a fine size and are of the finest quality. All garden vegetables do well, and two to four crops a year is the rule.
Strawberries are on sale in Honolulu
for the entire year, and olives, figs and all sorts of fruits grow in profusion.

In spite of the fertility of the soil
and the ease with which vegetables and fruits can be cultivated, nearly all these things are imported from California, and little of the local produce finds its way into the cities. The reason for this is the high freight rates between the islands themselves, which it has been suggested can be remedied
with the aid of the government.

Dairying and chicken raising are other profitable uses to which the homestead lands could be put. Nearly all the butter is imported from the east, as well as poultry and meats. A few big ranches in Hawaii are making enormous profits. There are many pests to contend with in Hawaii, but the farmers seem to combat them successfully.

The territorial land laws are extremely liberal. Homestead leases are given for 999 years, but application must first be made in writing. A home must be maintained on the land and a small percentage cultivated. The land is divided into first class agricultural, second class agricultural, wet land, first class pastoral, second class pastoral and pastoral agricultural land. No payment is required excepting a two dollar application fee. Lands are leased also with a right to purchase clause at a nominal figure. The purchaser is given twenty-one years to make the purchase.
Then there are cash freeholds and cash
sales lands which can be purchased outright at a merely nominal figure.

Eggs sell the year around in Honolulu from 50 to 60 cents a dozen; butter
is thought to be cheap at 40 to 50 cents a pound. Chickens bring from $1 to $2 apiece, and beef and pork sell all the way from 15 to 35 cents a pound. Celery is 25 cents a bunch, cabbage 10 cents a pound, potatoes and onions 3
and 4 cents a pound, apples 10 and 15 cents a pound and other fruits in like proportion.

Corn, oats and stock food are always high, and there is a ready market for all these things.

The Mountain View Route.

This is what the Northern Pacific Shasta, or Shasta-Northern Pacific Route—it reads as well backward as forward—may well be called.

The route takes its name from Mt.
Shasta in northern California. This white, snow capped peak, at the foot of which the Shasta route winds, is 14,350 feet high. The mountain is in plain view for several hours from the train and its distance from the track varies from twelve to seventy-five miles.

The beautiful scenery of the Sacramento river at the base of Shasta, is connected with this route only.
Castle Crags, Mossbrae Falls and the natural twin soda fountains at Shasta Springs are scenic gems.

The crossing of the Siskiyou range furnishes the par excellence of railway mountain scenery and observation cars are furnished there free of charge. Then in succession comes Mts. Jefferson, Hood—a beautiful mountain—St. Helens, Rainier—14-532 feet high—and Adams, all former active volcanoes and now covered with glaciers.

From Portland a steamboat ride trip up the noble Columbia river to the Cascades and Dalles enables the tourist to see a river, palisades, waterfalls and mountains far surpassing anything the Hudson can show.

An opportunity is also given to visit Tacoma, Seattle, Victoria, Vancouver and the Puget Sound region.

Then follow the cascade range and the Rockies, and best of all, a stop
can be made at Yellowstone Park.

This line traverses the finest scenic region of the United States—don't forget it, and see that your return
tickets home from California read around this way.

The train service between Portland and the Puget Sound country,
and Duluth, Minneapolis and St.
Paul via Spokane, Butte and Helena, is unsurpassed, including through trains daily, one of which is the noted "North Coast Limited."
